New High School Principal to Begin Job with 'No Philosophy' Approach

A big, open, "people" kind of man, who regards himself as both innovator and traditionalist, will move into the office of the principal, Princeton High School, on August 1.

John Sakala's name is pronounced "Suh-KAY-la." Although he is seasoned by years of experience as a high school principal and has ideas of his own for PHS, he says he will try to begin with a "no-philosophy" approach.

"I want to see the character of the community," he said in an interview last week, "the nature of the student as client, and what the town will tolerate in terms of change."

He had come down from Rockport, Massachusetts, where he's been principal of Rockport High, the week after he was appointed principal by a 6-2 vote of the Princeton school board. He poked around the echoing, empty Princeton High School building, learning it inside and out. He talked with his new colleagues and even found himself a Princeton apartment.

The strike-stalled construction at the school is a particularly anxious thing for Mr. Sakala–and yet absorbing, for this son of a contractor.

"I worked with my father and loved it, but some guidance counselor steered me away from woodworking and construction into being a school principal," he said with a smile. "I still have a passion for fixing things up and making them neat."

After looking over the building with assistant principal Florence Burke and director of secondary education David Myers, Mr. Sakala sat down, away from the desk, in the principal's office and talked.

"The outside world views Princeton as a community with a superior education system, and that was my motivation for applying," he began.

"I was not looking to get out of Rockford. It was a very productive, comfortable situation. But to seek professional advancement in a system with quality, comprehensive education–that was my motivation."

He sees a place for different educational programs within the same building. Besides a strong academic program, he believes, a school should provide for students who want other options. He sees as "one of the keys to our business" helping students to make decisions about a career and what kind of further education they need.

He plans to institute at PHS a system he started in Rockport.

"Every faculty member at Rockport has 12 to 15 students in a faculty-advisory system. This doesn't supplant guidance or student services. It is simply a more personalized touch.

"Remember when you were in school, you had a teacher you looked up to? Successful kids usually do have some close attachment to a teacher. But other kids, for many reasons, can't do this themselves and we should help."

Rockport, Massachusetts, is a resort town. In winter, it has about 9,000 residents. In summer, the population zooms to 40,000.

"I'm the only person who will LEAVE Rockport August 1," he laughed. He will also be leaving his apartment with the view of the ocean and the fund-raising school clam-bakes.

Compromise Is Only Answer If Princeton Hopes To Adopt Plan for Expansion of Business District

Who's going to compromise? That was the question this week, as the citizens Steering Committee on the downtown business district moved toward its July 24 meeting and the deadline it set for itself. (Borough Hall, Tuesday, 7:30 p.m.)

"A compromise must be effected between Palmer Square, Inc. and the town," emphasized Borough Mayor Robert W. Cawley to reporters on Monday. "If we can't reach a decision by the 24th, I'm not sure what we're going to do."

Meanwhile, there were these new developments, as the clock moved toward the deadline:

• The 'save-the-Playhouse' group is retaining Borough consultants Venturi and Rauch at a fee of $7,500 to draw up a plan by July 24 that will keep the Playhouse and take into account the needs of PSI, Princeton Community Housing, the library and, in the words of James and Ruth Thornton, two of the group's sponsors, "those who wish to have a sense of focus in Princeton."

• Margen Penick and Hans K. Sander are working on a new plan which they will add to Alternatives "X", "Z" and "Omega" at next Tuesday's meeting, hoping for Steering Committee approval. Although both are Planning Board members, they said they were acting as individuals, and not for the board.

• Mrs. Penick revealed, before her meeting with Mr. Sander, that she will propose moving PCH housing for the elderly outside the Central Business District. Studies seem to show that the CBD will be devoted to expensive shops and stores, which elderly people with modest incomes won't be able to afford, she said.

• An extra Steering Committee meeting was scheduled last Thursday for this Monday night to hear pros and cons about keeping the Playhouse and some 30 residents waded through a sharp, violent storm to attend.

Actually, the Playhouse group had asked the Borough to finance the Venturi and Rauch study and instruct the firm "to prepare ITS recommended plan for the area," instead of simply moving around the pieces already proposed. But the Borough has already used up V. & R.'s time, and its own money, the mayor said

"I was surprised to learn that Venturi and Rauch haven't been making an urban design for the town," Mr. Thornton says, "I thought that was the idea."

His group believes it can raise $7,500 in tax-free, "charitable" contributions from the 150 who signed its petition to the mayor asking that the Playhouse be kept. Mayor Cawley repeated this week that the Playhouse is the property of PSI, not of the Borough.

"Unless Princeton has a focus," Mr. Thornton said to PSI vice-president Michael Feldman on Monday night, "the whole town will go down."

The Playhouse group is asking V. & R. to prepare a recommended plan for Palmer Square. It should include the Playhouse, but be flexible enough to survive in case the Playhouse does indeed have to be razed.

The Thorntons say they are distressed that "PSI plans for Palmer Square are so sterile....We believe the community deserves to see an alternate plan which better serves both the Borough's and the University's needs."

At Monday night's meeting, held in Borough Hall although it con-

Township to Join in Funding Rescue Squad – Medical Center Involvement Uncertain

Township Committee gave the First Aid and Rescue Squad the boost it is seeking by adopting a resolution last Wednesday night to provide funding for paid daytime personnel in cooperation with the Borough.

The week before Borough Council had voted a motion to provide "at least partial funding" for the paramedic and EMT for daytime coverage that the Squad and Joint Committee studying Squad problems had recommended.

Township Administrator Joseph R. Nini told Committee that, based on conversations he had had with state authorities, Committee could ordinance an emergency appropriation, which then would be outside the cap limit for the 1980 budget on the grounds that this was an unforeseen expense. The Township's resolution says that the municipal funding will begin no later than 1980, but Committee members said they would like to see it begin earlier – even by November 1.

In the discussion before the resolution was passed, Mayor Josie Hall said she thought the idea of having the paramedic work part of the day in the emergency room at Princeton Medical Center was an excellent one, particularly from the point of view of "sharpening skills." Squad representatives agreed but said that Medical Center administrators had made it clear the hospital did not want to pick up any part of a paramedic's salary, nor did it feel it could work in an individual on a part-time basis, on call at a moment's notice to answer an emergency.

Squad Captain J. Edwin Obert Jr. said, "There is obviously a potential for hospital involvement – my predecessor saw it too. If you can change the Hospital's mind ..." he suggested.

Mayor Hall said she thought there was room for further negotiation with the Medical Center on what a highly trained person like a paramedic could do with his or her time in the hours not on call or not attending to equipment at the Squad house.

William Cherry suggested that the Squad is ill-organized to do the hiring of these paid personnel and take care of such things as social security. The Medical Center is well organized along these lines, he said, and so is the municipality. Squad members agreed.

Mr. Obert said he was confident that the Squad could find a qualified paramedic for the job but the individual would probably come from outside the present Squad membership, where there are several good candidates, he said. The EMT would probably come from within the organization, he thought.

Plans for Playhouse

cerned the Playhouse, Mr. Feldman drew on files going back to 1974 to demonstrate why PSI believes it's not feasible to keep the theatre. He suggested that the questions asked by PSI, should be asked also by those who want to keep the Playhouse.

The cost of rehabilitation and conversion would be over $500,000, Mr. Feldman said. (Mr. Thornton had suggested around $350,000 for converting the building from film to live-performance use.)

Theatre architect Hugh Hardy, of Hardy, Holzman, Pfeiffer Associates, said in 1974 that the Playhouse "emphatically could not" be converted to a concert hall. Mr. Feldman told Monday's audience that he had called Mr. Hardy that day and asked if he still felt the same way. He said that he did.

"He re-affirmed it with re-emphasis," Mr. Feldman said.

Playhouse Problems. The problems, as Mr. Feldman outlined them, are that the Playhouse was built as a movie house. Its accoustics, designed to be used with amplified sound, are "dead" for live sound; it is too small for a hall which might book a Broadway show or a symphony orchestra; the lines of sight are poor for live performances; backstage and public areas are inadequate, and so on.

Both Mr. Feldman and Carl Schafer, financial vice-president of Princeton University and president of PSI, pointed to McCarter Theatre, which is almost the same size as the Playhouse. It is subsidized by the University, has grants from various foundations and runs a regular deficit which must be plugged with appeals to the community. How, they asked, can the Playhouse do better?

Mayor Cawley told reporters this bothers him, too. "My real concern is programming--whether they could book enough into the Playhouse to keep it going, and I regard this as critical for the Playhouse group. I told Jim Thornton 'you've asked us to delay a long-standing project that already has a lot of momentum and I think the burden of proof is on you to show that it can work. I am still very skeptical."

Mr. Feldman said PSI hopes to include in its Palmer Square plans a twin movie theatre, or perhaps a small single theatre.

Mrs. Penick says that "ideally," it would be nice if the Playhouse could be saved, but she believes more time is needed to see whether it would work financially.

The Penick plan is designed to retain open spaces which give views "through" the town. She fears the bulk of building walls. Highlights:

• Two garages, both at the south end of the area: one at South Tulane and the other with an additional level at Chambers Street South, both for short-term parkers, perhaps with long-term on upper levels.

• A plaza, including required handicapped parking, in front of the library with on-grade parking in the rear exiting only into Wiggins.

• The deficit in long-term parking partially made up by finding four or five sites "where a dozen or so cars could be tucked away" behind the Nassau Club on Mercer, between Trinity Church and the building Princeton Theological Seminary expects to build on Stockton, and so on.

• The remaining long-term parking near the Dinky station at the foot of University Place, perhaps on-grade, perhaps in a garage. As an incentive to get people to walk uptown, parking could be ten percent cheaper.

• PCH elderly housing outside the CBD because old people with moderate incomes could not afford to shop anywhere in the area. The plan does not suggest an alternative part of town.

• High-rent housing — apartments and town-houses — built west of the Playhouse, where PCH was originally to go.

"Philistine" Plans. It will take more than one thing to revive the CBD, Mrs. Penick observed, "but we need something like the Playhouse. Present plans are rather Philistine — all commercialism.

"Our neighborhood and Greenholm are willing to take PCH and a large garage on Chambers South to accommodate PSI," declared Ann McGoldrick, of Vandeventer. Kathy Edwards, of Green Street, repeated her warning that her neighborhood will not tolerate "a wall" on the north.

—Katharine H. Bretnall

"The Steering Committee is all single-purpose people with their own special interests," she continued. "Everyone is taking a hard line."

Asked whether consideration of still another plan might not delay action, she replied:

"It is sterile just to move garages around. If we can't get something better than what we have now, the town won't accept it."

At last Thursday's Steering Committee work session, the spirit of compromise did not seem to be flourishing.

"The key element is disagreement among experts — ours and yours," Mayor Cawley told Gene McPartland, PSI-University spokesman. "V. & R.'s figures were developed to the Borough's interests, your figures to PSI's."

Mr. McPartland replied that PSI is already asking 50,000 square feet less than floor-area-ratio rules would allow, and said PSI had made compromises in design and in buffers for adjoining neighborhoods.

Yota Switzgable repeated her propnsal that a garage be built on PSI land next to the present Griggs Service Station. (It was incorrectly reported last week that she proposed a garage on the station site.) Ms. Switzgable, who lives in Greenholm, is concerned about garages in the western part of Palmer Square.

She charged that "economic feasibility for PSI is all you think of," and Mrs. Penick said later that Steering Committee meetings were too concerned with parking figures.

New PHS Principal

"...but in New Jersey, you can play golf in the winter. Not that I'll have much time."

Before Rockport, there was Watertown. In this Massachusetts community, he was principal of Homebase School, whose alternative programs have attracted the attention of educators.

"But Homebase wasn't laid back or funky. It was a sound learning environment. We said, 'Let's do constructive things within a framework suited to your learning style.' It's the only alternative school accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges.

"So these things rattle around in my mind along with the traditional approach, because after all, I taught calculus and physics for ten years. I did have a reputation," — and he smiled reflectively — "for doing some exotic things in the classroom."

NEW HIGH SCHOOL PRINCIPAL: John Sakala, new to the principal's desk at Princeton High School, will take over the office formally on August 1. He has been in Princeton on a working tour of the school, hoping he and the staff can find ways to work around problems posed by delays in construction.

A Blend of Innovative and Traditional. Serious again, he continued.

"There are really fine things to be accomplished in traditional education. The idea is to blend the best of the innovations of the past 20 years, with what's best in tradition. Our business is to educate kids, as well as to make them feel good."

Turning to his staff, John Sakala says he wants to "exploit the talents of the faculty — build on their interests."

He says he may be wrong, but he senses that teachers are "doing very quality things, but in isolation and in a way that's a bit disjointed.

"I will form department heads into a team, asking them to set priorities depending on what they hear from colleagues, asking them to make collective decisions with me.

"But I am not some democratic person chairing a group which will make the final decision. I will make the decisions. Department heads will be an advisory board for me because the collective health of the school is everyone's responsibility."

Mr. Myers is new, as director of secondary education. How will they get along?

"His office is right up there," and Mr. Sakala pointed at the ceiling. "He's a very valuable person, 100 percent congenial and easy to work with. We've listened to each other's suggestions and I see myself working closely with him.

"But the decisions concerning the high school are in my hands. That was a condition of my acceptance."

An Emphasis on Staff Relations. "I am emphatically not here to make my model and have teachers and kids fit it. I'm not some young whippersnapper coming in to tell 'em what to do. I'm 41 and I've been in education 20 years and I've thought about staff relations for 20 years. I've been successful in developing good working relations with my staff.

"I hope to lead by example. I work hard; I believe in excellence. People smell you out, you know, and find out where you come from."

After August 1, he will invite every member of the staff to his office for a half-hour talk.

"I want to know who they are, what they do. I want to hear their comments on what needs change, what needs to stay."

It is said that in Rockford High, Mr. Sakala not only knew the names of each of the 600-or-so students, but knew enough to ask, if he met a student in the hall, "Why aren't you in art class?"

Although he may not find time for golf, Mr. Sakala will probably find time for tournament bridge in which, he says, "I've had a lot of success."

In Rockford, he served as the school department's appointee to the Town Moderators Committee. "It touched the entire town, so I was able to keep the schools in touch with the community."

A bachelor following his divorce 11 years ago, Mr. Sakala has a 14-year-old son and he speaks of their relationship with deep and glowing warmth.

Here in Princeton, his mind is focused on construction problems. With Miss Burke and Mr. Myers, he has been working on contingency plans for shifting classes, shutting off classrooms. There are some hallways he says he doesn't yet want students in, because electrical wiring does not have a tile cover. And he says:

"I'm not used to a building like this — names written on walls. We've got a lot of painting and maintenance, custodial work to do, and we can't delay this regular maintenance. I'm not sure we have the staff to do it, but we'll do our best."

School Board President Robin Wallack, commenting this week on Mr. Sakala's appointment, said she was "delighted" that he was approved by the board.

"My prime concern was experience, and I felt that was the concern of the community, too. His eight years as principal are very important — he can step into PHS and draw from that background.

"He's a sensitive person with a strong academic background. That combination of the human side and the academic side is unusual. He'll need those qualities at Princeton High, and I'm delighted that he's going to be with us."

Moped Users Warned

It is a violation of the Township code to operate a moped on a bicycle path.

Chief Frederick Porter issued this warning to moped drivers this week, after receiving reports of mopeds being operated on Mercer Street and the Great Road bike paths.

"I would like to emphasize that anyone apprehended will be prosecuted," Chief Porter stated. He also pointed out that, under the code, the moped of a violator can be confiscated and removed to a storage place. It will be released, he said, only after the payment of removal and storage costs. In addition, violators are subject to a fine in Township court.

"If this is what it takes to stop such violations, it will be done," the Chief concluded.

TOUGHER LAW SOUGHT

On Loitering. Chief Frederick Porter came before Township Committee last Wednesday to ask for a tougher loitering ordinance. Specifically, he wants one that would give the police more authority to deal with the crowds of teenagers that cluster at the Shopping Center on occasions when they become unruly and when citizen complaints mount.

The law that is on the hooks now, as Chief Porter explains it, is known as "the behavior warranty alarm," and is "very hazy" and difficult to enforce. When Township police get a call from residents or shoppers complaining of noise from squealing car tires, litter from strewn beer cans, and malicious damage, the patrol car responds and the youth then "act like angels," according to Chief Porter. The police officer can do little but remonstrate or cajole.

Under the present ordinance, the officer has to observe a youth in the act of being unruly or drinking beer before he can make a charge. There may be beer cans everywhere – and the Shopping Center has reported carting away as many as two shopping baskets full of cans and bottles in a morning -- but beer drinking can't be proven unless actually seen.

Also, an officer can ask a youth to leave the premises, but, unless the individual refuses, no charge can be made. What usually happens, according to the Chief, is that all scatter, only to return. Under the Lawrence Township law that Committee was asked to study as a model, police officers may charge individuals who return to a scene that they have once been asked to leave.

Ordinance Supported. Charles Sperling of 311 Witherspoon Street, who happened to be at Committee meeting with a petition regarding possible changes in zoning in his neighborhood, spoke up in support of Chief Porter's appeal. "The ordinance you are asked to consider is vitally necessary," he told Committee. He described the daily barrage of beer bottles thrown out of car windows by teenagers leaving the Shopping Center and driving down Valley Road past the Witherspoon Street corner.

The two Democrats on Committee appeared to have some difficulty with some of the wording of the Lawrence Township ordinance. David Blair questioned the reliance on "subjective judgement on the part of the police." Township Attorney Gordon Griffin was requested to do some re-writing of the ordinance along the lines of Mr. Blair's suggestions.

In other business, Committee took care of the question of hazardous routes busing in short order when it learned that the Board of Education had agreed to waive the transportation coordinator's cost for administering the routes -- an administrative cost that had been a thorn in Committee's side. The Township will continue the program for the next school year at a cost of $18,995.94 and take a hard look at whether it is necessary for the following year in view of the bike path network.

An ordinance to appropriate an additional $7,000 in improvements to the Community Park Pool was introduced, and will have a public hearing on July 25. The money is for a new filtration system, because the Recreation Department can no longer get the chlorine it used before. A new system, using a different type of chemical (sodium hypochlorite), new pumps and a new fiber glass tank for the chemical is involved.

Mayor Josie Hall gave a detailed report on the fungicide Thiram which is used on golf courses and airports as a deer repellent. Thiram has to be mixed with a sticking solution before it is sprayed on foliage, where it acts as a chewing repellent once the deer has munched on a few treated leaves. The length of effectiveness varies with the proportions in which it is mixed, but is about six months.

Mayor Hall reports that it is not toxic to animals, except in undiluted quantities, nor harmful to plants, but that it does cause itching in humans. She is also looking into an odor repellent which she thinks may be more effective than a chewing repellent and less costly.

The rain over the past few days, especially Monday night, may have brought back memories of July 1975. The thunderstorms that hit Saturday around noon and Monday evening dumped a total of 4.35 inches on the area. Several intersections were flooded for a while Monday night.

There may be more showers around Wednesday night, but sunshine should return by Thursday and Friday with lower humidity than has been the case the past few days. The weekend should be partly to mostly sunny with the usual chance for an afternoon shower.

TWO ARE INJURED

When Car Hits Tree. Two young men were injured early Sunday morning when their car failed to negotiate a curve on Griggstown Road and struck a tree.

Montgomery Township police identified the driver as James Banister, 21, of Sunset Road, Skillman. He sustained lacerations of the head and was ticketed by Ptl. Kenneth Chrusz for careless driving.

A passenger, Michael Long, 20, of Canal Road, Griggstown, was admitted to the intensive care unit at Princeton Medical Center and was operated on for internal injuries and lacerations.

After failing to make the curve, the Banister car, police said, knocked down a traffic sign and mailbox. It struck a tree and continued on before ending up in a front yeard, causing extensive landscape damage. The accident took place at 4:03 a.m.

Hits Two Poles. In another single car mishap on Witherspoon Street Sunday night, a car left the road and struck two telephone poles when the driver said he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car.

The driver, Christopher Mills, 31, 5114 Fox Run, Plainsboro, was issued a summons for drunken driving by Ptl. John Clausen. He refused treatment for leg injuries. His passenger, Ralph Rounds, 21, of Philadelphia, was treated at Princeton Medical Center for severe head lacerations.

Mr. Mills told police the high beam lights of another car had blinded him, forcing him off the roadway. The police investigation revealed that his car left Witherspoon Street at Leigh Avenue, struck a hospital sign and a telephone pole on the corner. It then continued on for another 60 feet before striking another pole. Mr. Mills's 1979 rental car was judged a total loss by police following the 9:50 accident.

Four Are Injured. Four out-of-town residents were injured early Saturday morning when their small car hit one side of Harry's Brook Bridge on the Princeton-Kingston Road between Poe Road and Shady Brook Lane, glanced off and struck the opposite side. Their car was totalled.

William M. Brodie, 23, of Kendall Park, told Ptl. David Wilbur that he did not remember what happened or how fast he was going prior to the 2:38 a.m. accident. He was ticketed for careless driving.

Brodie was treated at the Medical Center for lacerations of the face. Also treated at the hospital were Stephen Motyka, 17, of Kendall Park, back and leg injuries; Wayne W. Semancik, 22, of Trenton, head and face injuries — the two most severely injured — and Ronald Jordan, 21, of Kendall Park, back pains. A fifth passenger, John Valone, 19, of Monmouth Junction escaped injury.

Girl, 8, Is Hit. Eight-year-old Johanna B. Baum, 140 Longview Drive, was struck by a car Friday afternoon just moments after she had been dropped off by a van in front of her home.

She was treated at the Medical Center for pains in her hip and leg. There were no charges against the driver, Kevin J. Hugh, 23, of Trenton.

Mr. Hugh told police that as he passed the van parked on tbe side of Longview, the victim ran across the street in front of him and he was unable to stop in time. The driver of the van, Delores Peterson of Jamesburg, reported that she had just dropped Johanna off prior to the accident, had seen the car pass her van and had tried to warn the child.

Three Car Collision. Friday the 13th was an unlucky day for Colleen Hall, 34, of 162 Mercer Street.

While driving on Bayard Lane in the morning, she failed to notice that traffic in front of her had stopped. The result: a three-car collision.

Her car ran into the rear of a car operated by Gary Lepore of Trenton. The impact sent the Lepore car into the rear of a car driven by James J. O'Donnell of Levittown, Pa. The O'Donnell car was pushed into a car in front of it but that car had left the scene before Sgt. Thomas Procaccino arrived.

Mrs. Hall struck the windshield of her car, suffering a laceration of the eyelid, abrasions of the forehead and lacerations of both knees. She was given first aid by Township police, who were first to arrive on the scene, then taken to the Medical Center where she was treated and released. She was ticketed for following too closely.

The front end of her small foreign car was extensively damaged and police described it as a total loss. The other two cars, which had stopped in traffic to allow a car in front to make a left turn, were able to drive from the scene.

TO REPAIR ROSEDALE

Bike Path Later. Those signs on Rosedale are advance notice of repair work by Mercer County, scheduled to start late this week.

But the bike path probably won't be built until spring, according to Mercer County Engineer Donald Harney. The required slope easements for the path have been obtained from property-owners, Mr. Harney said, but Federal regulations call for appraisals and negotiations. Since Borough and Township officials followed a simpler procedure, they must now obtain waivers from property owners. Mr. Harney said he has seven of the ten waivers, and expects the remaining householders to sign theirs shortly.

Because of the time it takes to go through the bidding process, he said, he doesn't expect New Jersey's Department of Transportation – which handles Federal bike-path funds – to go out for bids until January. This would mean early spring construction.

On Rosedale Road itself the county will remove the temporary patches and install a new two-inch riding overlay between Elm Road and Province Line.

Mt. Lucas Closed. In another matter, Township police reported that starting Thursday, Mt. Lucas Road will be closed between Poor Farm and Herrontown Roads for three weeks for the installation of a drainage pipe. The road will be closed to through traffic but will be reopened at 4:30 every afternoon and on weekends.

BRICK WALL STUCCOED

By Night Plasterer. Someone – dubbed by police as the night plasterer – stuccoed a six-foot by four-foot section of a building wall during the night last week.

Ptl. Bernard Lenhardt investigated when a 24 square foot section of the rear wall of the building at 92 Nassau Street, the former Lower Pyne Building which now houses the Suburban Bus ticket office in the front, was discovered stuccoed over. A call to the real estate office of Princeton University, which owns the building, revealed that no such work had been authorized.

"It's a mystery," agreed Chief Michael Carnevale. "Maybe he was an apprentice mason." Chief Carnevale reported that remnants of the stucco were splattered in the rear alleyway and that footprints leading out to the Witherspoon sidewalk were visible in the debris.

74 CHECKS TAKEN

From Dormitory Room. Seventy-four travelers' checks amounting to $2,490 were stolen earlier this month from Room 114 in Lourie Love Hall on the university campus. They were taken from a briefcase between 5:45 and 11:45 p.m.

The victim, Jeff Sanderson told police he was a group leader for Operation Crossroads Africa. Two groups of people, involving approximately 200, were scheduled to leave for JFK Airport in New York, he said. One the same day of the theft and the second the following day.

Entry was gained through an unlocked window, police said. Nothing else was taken.

On Consolidation

The last meeting of the Joint Consolidation Study Commission will be held this Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Borough Hall, and the Commission expects to spend the evening smoothing out the final draft of its final report.

The final report will probably be released next Wednesday, about two weeks before the August 7 deadline imposed by state law. The Commission was required by law to complete its report nine months following its election last November.

A Devereux Avenue residence was entered through an unlocked door between 10 Friday morning and 3 Saturday morning by a thief who stole a purse lying on a living room couch.

The victim lost $30. The purse was later found discarded under a tree on the property. Sgt. Robert Heacock investigated.

A stereo system, stereo cassette, color television receiver, camera and telescope with a combined value of $1,690 were stolen last week from a Prospect Avenue apartment which was entered during a two-hour period in the afternoon. Entry was through an open window.

The same day, Borough police report that a Prospect Avenue home was entered by ripping a window screen to enter the basement. An inside door was forced open but nothing was taken, police said.

Four rooms at the Princeton Inn College on Alexander Street were entered during the weekend. Two of the rooms were unlocked and screens were cut to enter the other two.

One victim from Pennsylvania lost a $50 gold necklace, a gold chain and cross valued at $138, $60 in cash from her wallet and a $150 watch.

Three boxes of costume jewelry valued at $150 were taken from another room and $7 from a wallet in a third. A purse was taken from a fourth room but it did not contain any money, police said.

Early in the week, a $50 portable radio was reported stolen from an unlocked room in 1938 Hall on the university campus.

15 MINUTES WORK

$1,025 Profit. It was quick work and a quick reward for a Borough thief last week.

Sunday morning between 10 and 10:15 while the owner was on the back porch, a thief entered a Dickinson Street home and stole her purse from a dining room table.

Inside, said police, were $1,000 in American Express checks, $25 in cash, a savings bank book listing $400 and credit cards.

Four bikes were stolen and two cars had their gas tanks siphoned.

A $150 men's 10-speed bicycle was taken from an Elm Road garage, an unlocked $50 bike owned by a Monmouth Junction resident was stolen from the Railroad Station area on University Place and two 10-speed bikes were reported stolen Monday from a locked garage on Horner Lane.

A quarter tank of gas was siphoned between noon and 5 p.m. Friday from each of two cars parked in a private parking area on upper Nassau Street. Police said the victims were employees of a nearby office building.

A borough parking meter – stand and all – was uprooted and carted away last week. Police said the meter, taken from Nassau Street near Pine, is valued at $88. Installation costs are $25.

The right front headlight of the car of a Belle Mead resident was stolen Thursday during the four hours it was parked in the Trinity Church lot. Police added a portion of the grille was also damaged in removing the light.

A Lawrenceville resident reported that her unlocked car was entered Monday while she was visiting on Battle Road. Her pocketbook was stolen and her leather wallet from the glove compartment. She lost approximately $50, a First National State Bank check book and credit cards.

BOROUGH MAN CHARGED

With Stolen Property Possession. John DeGrazia, 16 Linden Lane, has been charged with possession of stolen property by Borough police and faces an August 1 hearing in Borough court. He was arrested Saturday while walking on Nassau Street by Ptl. David Alston and Ptl. John Reading.

According to police, Mr. DeGrazia is a suspect in the theft of two quarried stone slabs, measuring 26 x 48 inches, from the construction site of Princeton University's bio-chemical building on William Street. They are valued at $200 each.

While on car patrol at 1:24 Thursday morning, Ptl. Alston and Ptl. Randy Sutton observed a man pushing a dolly containing the slabs on Nassau Street near Linden. He fled when he noticed the patrol car.

DRIVER FINED $420

In Traffic Court. In Borough traffic court Monday, Donald B. Tadlock, 29 Green Street, was fined $210 each on two charges of driving while suspended. Judge Philip Carchman imposed the fine.

TWO ARE INJURED

In Vineyard Accident. Two Princeton residents have been released from Falmouth (Massachusetts) Hospital and are recuperating from injuries received in an automobile accident in the early morning of Sunday, July 8.

Peters, also 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Landon Peters, 72 Knoll Drive, were injured when the Jeep in which they were passengers, collided with a pick-up truck. The youths have been working on Martha's Vineyard, where the accident occurred.

Young Marks sustained a fractured skull and Peters a fractured shoulder; however, the injuries were such that extended hospitalization was not required.

TO RE-SURFACE 206

This Fall, State Hopes. Plans to correct drainage-caused ice problems on Route 206 near Township Hall, have been prepared by the State Department of Transportation, and the DOT has informed the Township it hopes to do the work this fall.

DOT plans call for resurfacing the highway between Bayard Lane and Ewing. In addition, the DOT will build a drainage swale on the east side of the road for about 1,000 feet paralleling the Community Park South chain link fence. The swale, to be maintained by the state, will be four feet wide and one foot deep.

TO SPONSOR RALLY

Al Nuclear Power Site. Mercer Safe Energy Alternatives Alliance, (SEA Alliance) as part of a tri-state safe energy coalition, is co-sponsor of a rally on August 5 commemorating the 34th anniversary of the dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

The rally will be staged at the Salem-Hope Creek nuclear power complex in Salem County, New Jersey. This nuclear complex includes two completed plants, now temporarily closed because of mechanical problems and licensing delays, and two more plants under construction on the site. Possible future additions could make this one of the largest nuclear power complexes in the United States.

Problems related to use of the nuclear park complex as a major waste storage depot will be addressed, as well as concerns about nuclear proliferation, sabotage, and health hazards related to radioactivity.

Speakers will include Bella Abzug, Maggie Kuhn of the Gray Panthers, Arthur Jones of the New Jersey Council of Churches, and Michio Kaku, Professor of Theoretical Physics at City University of New York.

Charter buses will leave from the Princeton area. For reservations or information contact Joe Cifelli, 587-9196 or Carol Steinberg, 921-8492.

August, for Bridge?

The Stony Brook bridge on Mercer Road, closed since May of last year, may be opened next month. Mercer County Engineer Donald Harney said this week there was a "good possibility" of an August opening since repair work is ahead of schedule.

However, Princeton Township did not anticipate that work would be finished so soon and has not yet completed its own plans for new approaches to the bridge, Mr. Harney said. Asked if he would open the newly-repaired bridge anyway, even though the old approaches are still there, he said he probably would.

LET THE BUYER BEWARE

Chief Porter Warns. This is the season for phony roofing and driveway surfacing contractors, says Chief Frederick Porter of the Township and he urges residents to make sure they are dealing with a reputable firm.

"If you are solicited by any contractor at your home, request that he show you a valid soliciting permit issued by the Administrator's Office and the Chief of Police," Chief Porter said.

According to Chief Porter, many roof and driveway sealer operators visit the area this time of year in late-model pickup trucks with no company name on them. They will tell a prospective customer that they have been working in the area and have just finished a job at a home nearby. They are known to prefer the elderly, he said.

The work is often shoddy or incomplete, Chief Porter said. charges run from $60 to $800 in cash. When the work is completed, the customer receives a handwritten, seven-year guarantee, but a fictitious name and address are used so they can't be traced, Chief Porter reported.

One such large operation, he said, is known as the "Williamson Gang." It is widespread with some 300 operators that use New Jersey registered vehicles and usually head south in the winter.

Residents who have any suspicions about a contractor should call the Township police at 921-2100, Chief Porter said.

BUS ROUTES SET

For Landau Picnic. For those senior citizens attending the Landau Picnic at Prospect Gardens on Thursday, a bus will leave Redding Circle bus stop at 2:30. It will reach Holly House, Princeton Community Village at 2:40. Passengers at Spruce Circle will leave at 3:05.

The TRADE van will make three trips. It will leave Mt. Pisgah A.M.E. church, Witherspoon and MacLean Streets at 2:30 and at 2:50 p.m. The van will leave at the corner of Race Street and Birch Avenue at 3:10. All passengers will be notified which van they will board since the van makes three trips.

Individuals who wish to drive their own cars may park in Princeton University parking lot No. 26 on Ivy Lane off Washington Road. The First National Bank of Princeton and the Princeton Regional School System are also providing buses for transportation from other areas.

Additional entertainment will be provided by Rod Blackstone, Director of Paul Robeson Center, who will sing and play, beginning at 3. Mayor Cawley of Princeton Borough and Mayor Hall of Princeton Township will pick the winners for the raffle and door prizes. Rain date for the picnic will be Friday.

Rescue Squad Funding

Carnevale Plan. Meanwhile, the Squad has discussed at its own meeting last Monday Borough Police Chief Michael Carnevale's suggestion that Borough Police provide daytime emergency ambulance coverage using the Squad's equipment until the paid personnel are available. The proposal is to have a police officer who is qualified give emergency basic life support (as opposed to advanced life support from a paramedic operating out of a lifemobile) on patrol in a third car in addition to the two cars the Borough presently has on the road.

Under the plan, the ambulance would be parked at Borough Hall. When there is a call, the qualified patrolman would respond in the police car, and a second person, not necessarily first aid qualified, would drive the ambulance from Borough Hall to the scene.

The Squad says it finds Chief Carnevale's proposal "both attractive and disquieting." The Squad is proud of its 40-year history as the community's chief provider of emergency ambulance care. It knows that the standards of care have increased from 20 to 100 hours for initial certification, and that it takes additional time to become familiar with the particular procedures and equipment of the Princeton Squad.

At its meeting, the Squad listed seven topics in which it felt further discussion was needed before it could accept Chief Carnevale's proposal. Because the Borough's insurance carrier will not cover the police for medical liability, arrangements have to be made with the Squad's carrier to extend such coverage to police personnel. The Squad thinks the premium would be around $2,500 and would have to be born by the Borough or by both municipalities.

Orientation Needed. Further, police personnel would have to receive orientation to the Squad's equipment and procedures, and that could take a month or longer. The Squad also asks for a simultaneous sounding of the Squad's tone alerts and pagers, so that if there are rescue Squad personnel available they can respond to the scene also. This might provide paramedic response, which the Squad is proud of and seems to be eliminated from the original proposal.

The Squad also asks that the Police respond to mutual aid calls, which occasionally occur outside the two Princetons.

The report concludes by saying, "The Squad feels that it can continue to provide quality basic life support (and usually advanced life support), albeit with moderate delays during the interim period before daytime personnel will be hired. Very candidly, we are concerned about what will happen to community support if the Borough Police take over part of our operation."

Having said that, the Squad then ends up, in the interest of guaranteed daytime coverage -- assuming the enumerated conditions can be met --, accepting Chief Carnevale's proposal and authorizing its officers to work out suitable arrangements. Diran Dermen, president, signed the statement.

afraid of being trapped in an elevator, or experience anxiety in crowded supermarkets or closed rooms, or feel dizzy in high buildings are examples of the type of fears Ms. Biran has in mind.

For those who wish to overcome such fears, the treatment program is a short-term one. Participants will meet individually with a therapist for five sessions of 50 minutes each, spread over two or three weeks. The charge for the treatment is $10.

DATE LISTED

For Sneaker Ball. Morven will once again be the site of the annual benefit for The Youth Tennis Foundation, The Sneaker Ball. As they have for the past four years, Gov. and Mrs. Brendan T. Byrne will host the party, which this year will be held on September 15.

Co-chairman Nancy Henkel and Jane Schowalter have made the arrangements with the help of Pam Kelsey and Barbara Faughnan, invitations; Iris Flournoy and Charlotte Owen, reservations; Ginny Aris, Mary Jo Leddy, Eila MacKenzie and Mary Precheur, decorations; Diana Crane, entertainment; Ruth Wilson, publicity; and Anne Humes, YTF liaison.

The evening will begin with cocktails and music at 5:30 and proceed with dinner catered by Peter Vielbig. The menu will be Greek from alpha to omega, beginning with Avgolemono and Slouvlaki, continuing with Moussaka accompanied by Mediterranean bread and tomatoes stuffed with rice, pine nuts and raisins, and Baklava as a grand finale.

Triangle Director Milton Lyon will present highlights from past P.J. & B. shows (for the uninitiated, Princeton Junction and Back performances of Broadway shows held annually at McCarter Theatre). Following the entertainment, there will be dancing to the accompaniment of the Laurie Altman Quartet.

The Sneaker Ball serves as a fund raiser for the community tennis programs, enabling all interested students to participate in the classes which now attract more than 2,000, taught by a staff of approximately 150.

One Version of The Truth.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The "Awful Truth" is that with William Lockwood scheduling the Playhouse, we predictably get "Saturday Night Fever" to stay at home and do the laundry.

The trivia he predictably secures for us at the McCarter -- driving away old-time subscribers who hung on as long as they could – predicts the trash be promises to secure for us at the Playhouse. Saturday Night Fever indeed; I have neglected a thousand opportunities to see it by this time.

Do not please congratulate yourself, altruistic old P.U., on having conducted an experiment at the Playhouse. Your timid, tasteless commercialism has already corrupted the McCarter series, which has apparently appropriated the charming, authentic Summer Intime film program.

Who is the villain over there who is determined to obliterate all traces of the brief chronicles of film as an art form? And where has he hidden the body of the bound and gagged hero of intelligence and imagination who could give us a legitimate experiment at the Playhouse?

Town a Tourist Trap?
To the Editor of Town Topics:

What is that New York consulting firm trying to do, anyway? Turn Princeton into a tourist trap?

To equate Palmer Square with the Citicorp Building or Faneuil Hall is to ask for a bunch of tourist-y stores that out-of towners will visit once a year.

Since I live in one of the primary shopping areas to which the consultants' questionnaire was presumably sent (although I did not receive one), I would like to offer my views.

I'd rather keep the kinds of stores that are now in Palmer Square – the kinds where we who live in the area can do our normal day-to-day shopping on a regular basis.

Princeton already has superb shops where gourmet, ethnic, and natural foods, and kitchen equipment are sold. I've hardly ever seen them overcrowded (except just before Christmas, so why encourage unneeded competitive stores to undermine established local businesses?

Restaurants? Perhaps we could use a few more, but why must they all be clustered together? Diversity is far more appealing. Besides, the best restaurants result not from the "logic" of marketing surveys, but from the inspiration of chefs who sense a need and move in to fill it.

Library Support Urged
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The recently published letter questioning Princeton Public Library expansion may stem from misconception, and what is worse, create more. Expansion is not momentarily imminent, as implied in the letter, nor is the idea recently conceived. It is, in fact, a problem inherent in the present building.

It should be remembered that at the time of its construction in 1965, total square footage was sharply reduced and the building designed to expand to a third floor at a future time. No one has said that the time is now. We must, however, be prepared for the time when means and circumstance make further development appropriate.

Lack of space, a serious problem now, is certain to become more serious as seating space is reduced to accommodate necessary stack addition. Storage and work areas are inadequate. These are just some of the problems which have been carefully detailed and presented to the public through the years.

The superb library staff continues to function at the high level of efficiency the community has come to expect. The community continues to grow, not diminish, and the number of active library users of all ages spirals upward. Will the development of the central business district, bringing more people into the immediate area, mean that fewer people will make use of the library?...No.

In many parts of our country, public libraries are fighting for survival. We tell ourselves that it can't happen here. It can, and it is, bit by bit and chunk by chunk -- by a minimal budget slashed into the bone, resulting in curtailment of service, by misconception publicized....

The pursuit of knowledge is a basic right. The proliferation of the means of this pursuit has presented new and challenging responsibilities for public libraries. Strangely, at the same time that libraries are fighting for survival, there is growing awareness of the fact that knowledge and self-development have their source in libraries as surely as in the formal education process.

A study bill for a National Library Act, sponsored by Senators Javits and Kennedy, will be presented for consideration at the White House Conference on Libraries and Information Services which will convene in Washington on November 15. The bill would insure nation-wide minimum standards of public library service.

Does this have a bearing on our local library problems? Indeed it does. One way is in helping us to keep in proper perspective public library service as necessity, not privilege. It also points up the fact that Princeton is not alone in its struggle to maintain adequate library service in the face of fiscal crisis.

Communities differ widely in the support of their public libraries. It is not possible to measure the intangible kind of support in the way that one adds and subracts dollars and cents, nor is it possible to overestimate its importance. In Princeton, the excellence of our public library has evolved from it and is sustained by it. Keep the momentum!

Background on Library.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Questions raised in Sallie Jesser's letter in last week's TOWN TOPICS are provacative indeed. I am writing in an effort to provide some background information on the subject.

As president of the Board of Trustees of the Public Library at the time discussions and decisions on the present building were initiated and the architect's plans were under study, I recall vividly that the entire board agreed that a third floor was a future necessity. The disagreement among the trustees centered on whether provisions for future needs should be roughed in at the time of construction or be left entirely for the next phase of development. In fact, the latter course was decided upon.

As the community has grown, the necessity for this expansion has become apparent. It was further agreed at the time the new building was being planned that services for all segments of the community should continue to be offered to the best of the library's ability – a reference section for the business community, book deliveries to the house-bound by volunteers who appreciated such deeply-felt needs, thoughtful and helpful services to adults and children of every age.

In an atmosphere of quiet helpfulness and of respect for the individual user, whomever he or she may be, a community resource is provided that epitomizes democracy — access to information and knowledge, supported by largely public and some private monies in a measured, responsible way.

Time to Speak Up Now.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In answer to the recent letter of Mrs. Sallie Jesser questioning library expansion.

We don't really expect to expand the Princeton Public Library at present, but if we don't speak up for space now when the rest of the Borough is planning to grow there won't be any for us when we do need it in the future. It's bound to happen, sooner or later, as all signs point to the future growth of Princeton.

We must have spent at least ten years planning the present library building, before it was finally built.

A Success Despite the Rain.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

What a fantastic audience! The estimated 6,000 people of all ages who trooped through the pouring rain on the Fourth of July to hear the beautiful music of the New Jersey Symphony and Clamma Dale performed inside Jadwin Gym instead of out-of-doors as planned, could not have been more understanding, more attentive, more appreciative.

The grateful thanks of the sponsoring groups — the Princeton Youth Fund, the Princeton YWCA and the Princeton chapter of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra League — go to Princeton University for its total support and cooperation; to area banks and savings and loan associations for selling tickets; to the Chamber of Commerce for answering inquiries; to local business firms whose advance sale ticket purchases provided the working funds we needed; and to our newspapers and radio stations for promoting this community event.

Next year the weather man promises to be more patriotic. Meanwhile, it's great to know the Pops-Picnic-Fireworks show will go on, rain or shine.

Summer Reading Suggestions from Public Library

If the prospect of long gas lines doesn't discourage you from taking your holiday, the Princeton Public Library can supply you with books to consult before your trip or to carry along with you. For example, "The Classic Country Inns of America" is a lushly illustrated series which will introduce you to some of the traditional, rustic, or elegant inns for all ranges of vacation budgets around the States. Emily Harting's "Literary Tour Guide to the United States" will lead you to places with literary associations; however, if you are staying home this summer or are entertaining guests in town, the guides of two Princetonians, Alfred Bush's "Literary Landmarks of Princeton" and Cynthia Gooding's "A Princeton Guide: Walks, Drives & Commentary," would be interesting and useful alternatives.

Those with tastes along different lines might try "Amazing America" by Jean and Michael Stern or Jim Brandon's "Weird America: A Guide to Places of Myatery in the United States," guidebooks to the bizarre. Travellers who are addicted to running should read David Colker's "Running Away From Home: A Guide to 32 Trails in 32 Cities Across America."

When you've arrived at your destination and need books for the beach or for rainy days, try dependable entertainers like Anthony Trollope, either the Palliser or Barsetshire series of novels, or his "Kept in the Dark," recently published for the first time. If you like Victorian novelists but have exhausted the better-known writers turn to Mrs. Gaskell, whose stories of English village and family life are amusing and beautifully written, either "Cranford" or "Wives and Daughters" would be a good choice.

Edith Wharton is another excellent alternative for summer reading; her novels often deal with New York society at the turn of the century. The fragile heroine in Wharton's "House of Mirth" is defeated and destroyed by that society; a coarser and less vulnerable woman rises to triumph over it in "The Custom of the Country." Louis Auchincloss' novels, many of which can be read as modern versions of the same subjects, provide fascinating parallels if read along with Wharton's books.

Among recent contemporary novels Rona Jaffe's "Class Reunion," Eleanor Perry's "Blue Pages," William Styron's "Sophie's Choice," and Peter Straub's "Ghost Story" have had good reviews and a large readership at the Library. "The Vicar of Christ," another new novel, is by a local author, Walter Murphy, who researched the book intending to write a factual account of the Vatican's workings and to protect his sources turned it into fiction instead. Andrew Greeley's "The Making of the Popes 1978" might be read as a counterpoint to Murphy's book.

Biographies and autobiographies are plentiful this summer: John Pearson's book on the strange family of English intellectuals, the Sitwells; Shana Alexander's biography of Patty Hearst; "The Rise and Fall of Theodore Roosevelt" by Edmund Morris; "The Path Through the Trees" by Christopher Milne, the son of A.A. Milne and the original for Winnie-the-Pooh's Christopher Robin; and the second volume of actor Dirk Bogarde's memoirs, "Snakes and Ladders." If you are curious about the ways in which biographies are written then you should read Marc Pachter's "Telling Lives: the Biographer's Art."

There are good, new books of poetry available at the Library too. "Mirabell: Books of Numbers" by James Merrill won this year's National Book Award for poetry. Poems from May Swenson's work over the last thirty years have been gathered into "New and Selected Things Taking Place." Canadian poet and novelist Margaret Atwood was praised by critics for her latest collection, "Selected Poems." And for reflections on the theory and practice of twentieth century poetry by the poets themselves you should read "The Poet's Work," a new book by another local writer, Reginald Gibbons.

Reilly's Market Owners Hoping Zoning Board Will Approve Move Across Witherspoon Street

It looks as though Reilley's Meat Market may have a home after all, if the Borough Zoning Board agrees, although the market will close indefinitely this week.

Dominic and John Zullo, the brothers who own Reilley's, were notified on July 8 by Nancy Browder, owner of their building at 22 Witherspoon, that they would have to move in three months. Mrs. Browder, also owner of the Iris boutique next door at 24 Witherspoon, told Dominic Zullo that she wants to open a shop with kitchen utensils in the space now occupied by his meat market.

According to Mr. Zullo, she offered him the basement of his present market, if he would be interested in investing in the remodeling work involved, but he says he told her that his customers would find stairs too difficult to handle.

Although Mrs. Browder, as owner of the building and holder of the Zullo lease, was perfectly within her legal rights, her action aroused shoppers as nothing has since the burning of Hill's Market two years ago.

The fact that the notice came as the future of the downtown area is being discussed in Borough Hall, added to the feelings expressed, not only by Zullo customers, but by others as well. The Zullos bought the market from Mr. Reilley 24 years ago and have had a successful business in custom-cut and specialty meats, live lobsters, and particularly game.

THE MEN AT REILLEY'S: Dominic Zullo (left) and his brother, John, bought Reilley's Meat Market on Witherspoon 24 years ago. They are shown working on shell steaks, a leg of lamb and a ham.

"People come all the way from Newark to buy our game," Dominic Zullo says.

Customers and friends expressing dismay at the possible removal of Reilley's, saw it as one other long-established business in distress, and recalled the recent shops in Princeton that have closed.

Although this story may have a happy ending, the Zullos are selling their equipment: old scales, the rotisserie in the window, the lobster tank, showcases -- all are for sale.

The new location would be in the warehouse behind Community Wine and Liquor, across Witherspoon from Reilley's present market. A zoning variance would be required, and Dominic Zullo, the elder of the brothers and spokesman, said this week that he will apply for the variance.

"But first, we must have a vacation. And so, we are going to close."

STUDENT LOANS RISING

At Princeton Bank. Applications for student loans for the 1979-80 school year are running well ahead of previous years' activity, according to John Robertson, vice-president for consumer credit at Princeton Bank, one of the state's leaders in student lending.

Loans are available for college education up to a maximum of $1,500 for the freshman year and up to $2,000 for each additional year with a maximum of $7,500 for a four-year education. On the graduate level, loans may be obtained up to $5,000 per year to a maximum of $15,000. The loans can be used for tuition, books, living expenses and travel to and from college.

Many more families are borrowing money for college this year. Runaway inflation has both increased tuitions and lowered incentives to save for college in advance. A change in the student loan program, effective this year, opened the program to everyone, regardless of family income. In the past, loans under the Federal interest-subsidy program were limited to students whose families earned less than $25,000 annually.

Interest on these loans is paid by the Federal government until the repayment period begins nine months after graduation (or upon leaving school for any reason). There is no cost to the student while in school. The interest paid is a modest 7 percent under repayment terms spread over a number of years.

Princeton Bank has been an active participant in the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Program since 1963 and has consistently been an Honors participant during that time. Of 375 active lenders in the program, less than 2 percent made the Authority's Honor Roll last year.

During the 1979-80 school year, Princeton Bank made 509 loans averaging $2,200 each for a total of $1,120,462.

Applications for student loans may be obtained at any of the 12 Princeton Bank offices in Mercer and Middlesex Counties.

NET INCOME DOWN

At New Jersey National. New Jersey National Corporation reports that preliminary unaudited figures for the first six months of 1979 indicate net operating earnings of $3,372,666 compared to $3,240,693 for the same period in 1978, an increase of 4.1 percent. Net income, after a previously reported planned loss on sale of securities during the first quarter of 1979 was $2,907,333 compared to $3,317,804 in 1978.

The bank realized $77,111 from the sale of securities for the first six months of 1978, but lost $465,333 on securities sale during the same period this year.

SEVEN PROMOTED

By Walter B. Howe. At a recent Board of Directors meeting, William J. Dettmar was elected Chairman of the Board and Nicholas L. Carnevale President of Walter B. Howe, Inc. At the same time, the Board designated three senior vice-presidents: Charles M. Martinette, real estate operations, Kenneth G. Diener, real estate marketing and William L. Horr, Jr., general insurance management.

Earlier, at a special meeting of stockholders, M. A. McNaughton, Corporate Treasurer and Theodore S. Reed, President of the Gulick Agency, were elected to the Board of Directors.

The promotions reflect a realignment of corporate assignments to meet the requirements of the firm's growth and to advance younger staff members into senior management positions.

Mr. Dettmar, a Rider College graduate, joined Howe after college and has served as the company's Treasurer, Vice President and President before being named to his new position. Mr. Carnevale became affiliated with Howe in 1966. A graduate of Rutgers University, he has served as general coordinator for insurance and was Executive Vice President before becoming President.

Established in 1885, Howe is one of the largest independent insurance agencies and real estate firms in central New Jersey. In addition to Princeton, Howe maintains offices in West Windsor, Hamilton Township, Pennington, Flemington, Sea Girt and West End.

Rowland A. Egger, political scientist and international expert in public administration, died on July 9 after an extended illness in Charlottesville, Va. He was 71.

Prof. Egger had twice been a member of the Princeton University faculty, once as an instructor in the politics department from 1929-1931 and again as a professor of politics and public affairs in the Woodrow Wilson School from 1964-1972. For the more than 30 years between these two stints at Princeton, he held teaching and research posts at the University of Virginia, interrupted by a wide variety of overseas assignments to Bolivia, Pakistan and other countries. In 1962, he was appointed by President Kennedy as his special representative to Bolivia.

As both a acholar and practitioner of the arts of public administration, Prof. Egger concentrated on research and the application of research results to public affairs. He served for many years as Director of the Institute of Public Administration at the University of Virginia and from 1939 to 1942 as budget director of the Commonwealth of Virginia. Since 1968, he had been a member of the governing board of the International Institute of Administrative Sciences and editor of its professional journal, the International Review of Administrative Sciences.

He received numerous awards and decorations from foreign governments. Prof. Egger was a member of the Nassau Club of Princeton, and the Princeton Club of New York.

His sole survivor is a stepson, Dr. William MacIlwaine of Waynesboro, Va.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

WHY TREES SHED LEAVES IN SUMMER: EXCESSIVE LEAF DROP A TROUBLE SIGN

with Sam daTuro

Woodwinds Associates

For several weeks many varieties of shade trees have been shedding summer-green leaves

This has been particularly true with shallow-rooted Maples If leaf drop is moderate, do not be concerned. With the onset of hot, dry weather, this is nature's way of balancing root and crown when there is insufficient soil moisture to supply all the leaves the tree put forth during a wet spring.

When leaf fall is heavy on any tree, ask a tree specialist to look for the cause It could be due to an attack by aphids, mites, scale insects, or leaf fungi.

Excessive leaf shedding reduces a tree's vigor Such trees should be watered well during dry spells. Mulches conserve soil moisture and prevent roots from being "cooked" by the hot sun Feeding is always recommended WOODWINDS uses liquid invigoration widely during summer months This means injecting liquid nutrients into the root area It serves three purposes feeding the tree with a quick stimulant, getting water into the root area, breaking up compacted soil

NOTE: In watering a tree during dry periods, WOODWINDS reminds homeowners to water at the dripline or outer crown limit and beyond. This is where the feeder roots are, and water is absorbed through these tiny roots. If the soil is caked dry, avoid water runoff from a hose by lightly sprinkling the area first. Gradually, the moisture will soak down. Then, let the hose run very slowly all night over the outer root area. Remember, it does little good to water a tree near the trunk.

WOODWINDS is always happy to answer any questions concerning your trees and shrubs please call us at 924-3500

NO, NOT MOVING DAY: Just one of those tasks every homeowner knows about: you've got to get the furniture out of the way so they can lay the new carpet and paint the walls. That's the way it was Monday at Nassau Interiors. Paint and carpet work were done mid-week.

Love in the Lead
The Fifty-Year Miracle of the Seeing Eye Dog
by Peter Brock Putnam
A Sunrise Book

"Any attempt to define a Seeing Eye dog as a tool, a guiding instrument for a blind man, breaks down upon the love that alone enables that instrument to function." Love in the Lead is the story of developing that instrument and forging that bond of love between man and dog. It is a lively and moving history of the formative years of the Seeing Eye and the struggles that followed. Publication coincides with the school's fiftieth anniversary.

Peter Brock Putnam has been active in The Seeing Eye program since 1941 and has owned seven Seeing Eye dogs. He has written five books, including Keep Your Head Up, Mr. Putnam!

NEW POST ANNOUNCED

For Trinity Associate. The Rev. Roger W. Cramer, associate rector at Trinity Church since 1976, has been appointed rector of St. Paul's Church in Newburyport, Mass. He will assume his duties in September.

While at Trinity, Father Cramer was in charge of Christian education. He served under the rectorships of James Whittemore and John Crocker Jr. and had particular responsibilities for the running of the church during a nine-month interim period between the two. His wife, Louise Sabolchy Cramer, was active in the Christian education program and the Trinity Adult Choir.

Prior to his tenure at Trinity, Father Cramer served as a part-time curate in Columbia, Md., where he worked as a potter and ran his own pottery business.

This Sunday will be Father Cramer's last day at Trinity. He will be the celebrant at the 10 a.m. service of Morning Prayer and Holy Communion. The Rev. John Crocker Jr. and his wife will give a party in his honor Saturday from 5-7 at their home.

TWO NAMED DELEGATES

To World Conference. Dr. Charles C. West and Ms. Lois G. Livezey, both members of the Princeton Theological Seminary faculty, have been named fraternal delegates to the Third Assembly of the World Conference on Religion and Peace, which will convene on the Seminary campus August 29-September 7.

Dr. West, whose appointment as the Seminary's Academic Dean was recently announced, will represent the World Alliance of Reformed Churches. Ms. Livezey, an instructor in Christian Ethics, will represent the Seminary.

The two will be among the 265 leaders representing the major world religions: Buddhism, Christianity, Confucianism, Hinduism, Islam, Jainism, Judaism, Shintoism, Sikhism and Zorastrianism, in the first full Assembly of the WCRP to be held in the United States. A preparatory meeting was held in Princeton last September.

The theme of the assembly, "Religion in the Struggle for World Community," will be addressed in commissions and seminars. Smaller workshops will develop programs of action by the various religious groups and by the international secretariat of the WCRP, as well as its various national and regional groups. Topics range from international economic order, conflict and disarmament, through social justice and human rights, to the spiritual dimensions of interreligious cooperation for peace and ioterreligious dialogue in conflict situations.

GENETICIST TO SPEAK

At Christ Church. Dr. Lane P. Lester of Orlando, Fla., will be the guest speaker at the 11 a.m. service of Christ Church of Princeton on Sunday.

Dr. Lester earned his M.S. in ecology from Purdue and his PhD in genetics, also from Purdue University and has been a leader in the work toward scientific theories of creation. The subject of his sermon will be, "Christian Compromises with Evolution," in which he will outline the difference between religious belief and scientific knowledge, indicating where Christians and others have been stampeded into changing their beliefs due to Darwinian and neo-Darwinian theories that have later been overturned.

Services for Christ Church are at 11 and 6:30 every Sunday, with Sunday School for all ages at 9:45. The Church meets at the Boychoir School of Princeton on Lambert Drive, just off Rosedale Road.

Dr. Lester, who will be in the area to address the New Jersey Scholars and a one-day symposium at the Lawrenceville School, has spent the last several years with the Orange Counseling Center in Orlando, speaking frequently around the country. He will leave in August to assume a professorship in biology at Liberty Baptist College in Lynchburg, Va. The future of humanity was the topic that drew 11,000 people to hear him speak in Alberta and Saskatchewan last February 14-26.

Speaking in 13 cities on behalf of the Creation Science Association of Alberta, Dr. Lester dealt with the scientific and moral issues raised by such concerns as birth defects, abortion, test tube babies, cloning, and genetic engineering. Repeatedly emphasized was the need for a reliable standard in dealing with these problems.

Her sermon topic will be "No Better Way."

Following Mr. Meinema's presentation, slides taken at Arts and Barns '79 will be shown by Bob Cope.

The evening will be sponsored by the Harlingen Reformed Church and the Van Harlingen Historical Society and is free of charge. Everyone of all ages is invited. Refreshments will be served. For additional information call Jean Balcom, (201) 874-3582.

NEW LISTING

PRINCETON-LAWRENCEVILLE ROAD

A beautiful old stone house in Princeton is a rare find indeed. It is circa 1800 with high ceilings, wide floor boards, deep window sills, seven fireplaces, and a true country kitchen.

Yesterday's classic center hall separates the music room and library from the living room and dining room. There is a small studio and four large bedrooms plus a separate wing that would make a marvelous apartment.

A secluded covered porch with attached deck looks out over the two plus acres and large old stone barn that has been lovingly restored. The land meanders down to Stoney Brook with its attendant riparian rights.

Thoughts for today: there are two furnaces (one of them new), 6" of insulation in the attic, and the bus goes right by the front door.

Innovative Program Begun by Ray Male to Tap Country's 'Boundless Resource' — Its People

Work, education and leisure are the three components of life. Get them working simultaneously and harmoniously throughout the lifetime of every individual and you've tapped this country's "boundless resource" — its people.

That's the philosophy of Ray Male. Quietly, without publicity, he's been implementing it for the last three and a half years through Trenton-based, federally-financed "Work Education and Leisure Initiative."

"I'm reaching into everything I've ever been mixed up with," Ray says happily, "labor, education, being mayor of Princeton, working with kids, the elderly, politics, the community, people...and it's the greatest fun I've ever had in my life."

"When people ask me what I'm doing, I say I'm running a sausage factory: making links between people who haven't talked or worked with each other before."

Ray Male, whose highly-charged endocrine system is legendary in Princeton, was Democratic mayor of the Borough from 1958 to 1962, New Jersey's Commissioner of Labor of Industry, member of the Rider College faculty, vice-president for external affairs of Thomas A. Edison College, moderator for the radio program "Youth Speaks Up," owner of Male's Book Shop that was, currently a vice-president of (Newark) Symphony Hall, Inc., and on and on.

And if you yourself have an idea....

Work, Education and Leisure Initiative does not set up programs. But it helps you find the people who can help you, advises on legislation you might need, where you could find money. Three projects show best what Ray and Initiative are doing:

Plainfield Plan. The first is a city project. A resident of Plainfield, disturbed by the decay of Victorian houses, asked Initiative for advice. He was told to talk to people in Plainfield schools, churches, municipal government, community groups and get them all together. After this had been done, Ray went to Plainfield and talked one evening to 150 enthusiastic residents.

The result is Plainfield Heritage, Inc. Starting with unemployed youth and retired men and women or older unemployed — many with a lifetime of skills — Heritage has begun to move.

The idea is to refurbish these huge old houses and convert them into modestly-priced apartments. The resident who had the original idea is now with the Plainfield Housing Authority, advising a local church on renovating a church-owned house.

"The church, housing authority, unemployed kids, retired — all are pooling their time, financing and talent," Ray says with enthusiasm. "It could be a pilot."

Railroads into Parks. The second project is rural. Greg Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard C. Johnson of Princeton, went to Ray with an idea: save the rights of way of abandoned railroads by making them linear parks.

Hikers, nature-lovers, bicyclists — all would benefit, young Johnson reasoned. He has in mind a 127-mile stretch of abandoned line, toothless without ties or rails, in Warren and Sussex counties. Over two dozen trestles cross winding little streams, and Ray immediately saw that even the handicapped in wheelchairs could go fishin' from one of the trestle bridges.

State Senator Wayne Dumont has expressed interest and a formal non-profit corporation called "Recycling Railroads, Inc." has been formed to look into property rights. It's not a question of buying land; simply acquiring the right to clear it up, providing work — paid or volunteer — for young or old.

"It's like banking land," Ray believes. "Suppose railroads come back again" (and he has a gleam of a scheme for a New Jersey network of revived old lines, carrying tourists around historic sites, like a tourist Toonerville; "the rights of way have been preserved."

When Ray says with a sly grin, "I'm to blame for this one," you know the third is his favorite.

IDEA MAN: Princeton resident Ray Male seized upon Willard Wirtz' concept of people as the United States' "Boundless Resource" to develop a work-education-leisure philosophy. A lot of people in Princeton and the state would say that Ray himself is New Jersey's "boundless resource."

Recruiting the Young. "Bent Nail Laboratories, Inc." will recruit young who have no degrees, were turned off by school or completed college withoug knowing what they really want to do. Alongside will be retired men and women who may have wanted all their lives to do just this....

"This" is working in a lab to make the inventions that have been developed and patented by big corporations, research labs or universities, but which are out of line with the Institution's main stream. Royalty-free, these inventions will be hammered into shape by the young and not-so-young of Bent Nails, learning math and technical langunges as they go along.

Gordon Beaver, who got his degree from Edison and knew Ray there, is president. John Zvosek, Princeton planner whose renovation of the Dutch Neck School on Route One is the kind of creativity Ray has in mind, is on Bent Nail's board of directors.

Why Bent Nail? Because Mr. Weaver's farmer grandfather once made him straighten bent nails in a pile of lumber: "We may be needin' them nails some day," he told his grandson.

"A former Rider student of mine now at the Applied Research Laboratories at Johns Hopkins, has offered us, royalty-free, the use of things they can't use," Ray says. "University Patents Inc. will scout for us. Stuart Mindlin, here in Princeton, has a computer program that helps people find what they really want to do, and we're working now to match jobs and penple."

'Towards Zero' Has Bonus for Intime Audiences Fine Entertainment Plus 'Who Done It?' Contest

Everything about a murder mystery must be taut in order for it to engage the audience properly, build the suspense, and resolve itself satisfactorily. For a murder mystery runs on suspense just as a car runs on gas -- and the more efficiently, the better.

The plot must be airtight, the staging meticulous, the lighting, set, and sound carefully controlled, and the characterizations psychologically correct.

Under the direction of John Whitesell II, Agatha Christie's "Towards Zero" purrs along like a new car, transporting Intime audiences to the heart of an entertaining, mind-boggling riddle.

Although "Towards Zero" does not reach the same wonderfuly level of labyrinthine intricacy or of humor as Christie's more popular "Mousetrap" – which Summer Intime presented last year – it has the same gift of involving the audience in trying to answer the leading question: Who done it?

Like "Mousetrap," "Towards Zero" is participatory theatre, theatre in which the audience's pleasure is heightened by their involvement in solving the mystery.

Intime's production has cleverly stressed the participatory nature of the play and built up the intrigue by running a "Who done it?" contest during the intermission. The winners – and there were seven of them the night I saw the show – get two-for-the-price-of-one admission into any Summer Intime Sunday matinee this season.

The action takes place in the drawing room of an old house on the coast of England – right on the coast. The set, by Jim Engstrand and Stephen Sechrist, is a highly plausible rendition of an English parlor, with red leather upholstery, and Oriental rug, a writing table, green walls, and of course multiple entrances, which are crucial to a Christie play.

Foreboding Clues. The house is built into a cliff, and outside the leaded windows is a sheer drop to the water below. We are told -- ominously, of course -- that Lady Tressilian (Laura Halper) likes to keep the windows closed to "prevent people from falling out." There are many such foreboding clues planted in the first few scenes; possible motives are sprinkled everywhere to keep the audience alert while the groundwork is being laid.

Gathered together at Gulf's Point is an awkward combination of people. Lady Tressilian's late husband's ward, Nevile Strange (Kevin Meeoni), has deliberately shown up with his second wife, Kay (Celeste Clark), for his annual holiday at the same time as his first wife, Audrey (Nancy Bleemer), takes hers. His interest in ex-wife Audrey is more acute than Kay, a jealous type prone to screaming fits, is pleased with.

Also present are: Thomas Royde (Len Galla), Lady T.'s imperturbable, pipe-smoking, non-conversant other ward who has returned after a seven year absence in the hope of winning Audrey's hand in marriage this time around (he lost it to Nevile last time); Matthew Treves (Richard Maynard), an old friend of Lady T.'s who has a mind like a lawyer and the observant stance of a journalist; Mary Aldin (Wendy Saivetz), Lady T.'s modern-day counterpart to a lady-in-waiting; and Ted Lattimer (William Kepper), Kay Strange's foreign boyfriend.

Dale Coye Superb. The acting is quite good. Dale Coy is superb as Superintendent Battle, the somewhat eerie, accusative, quick-to-jump-to-conclusions detective on the case, and Len Galla deserves special commendation for his humorous depiction of a character whose emotions -- if he has any -- are bottled up deep inside him.

The costumes, by Celeste Clark and Miriam Q. Dyson, are for the most part contemporary, with the possible exception of Lady Tressilian,

Lest I divulge any more of the plot thao is strictly necessary, I will just say that someone is murdered, there are a lot of leads, a lot of false leads — but, of course, it all works out in the end.

A note of warning: should you decide to go, double check your reservations -- mistakes in the box office are all too frequent at SI.

LIFE AND LABOR

In Summer Cinema Films. The beauty of life and the reality of politica are the themes for the new twin bill to be offered by McCarter's Summer Cinema. The films will be screened in Kresge Auditorium starting next Wednesday and continuing four more days through Sunday, July 29.

The opening film will be "Adelen '31," Bo Widerberg's film about the 1931 Swedish strike that ended so violently it brought about the downfall of the government. The small town of Adalen is seen in the middle of a fine Swedish summer, and the director – who did "Elvira Madigan" – contrasts the beauty of life and the gritty reality of politics.

The second feature will be "Blue Collar," described by McCarter as "that movie rarity, a genuinely political film." Three Detroit autoworkers, all of them hard up for a dollar, concoct a scheme for ripping off their union. It not only boomerangs, but costs them the only good thing they have -- their friendship.

On Wednesday, Thursday, and Sunday, "Adalen '31" will be shown at 7:30 and "Blue Collar" will follow at 9:30. On Friday and Saturday, respective showtimes will be 8 and 10 p.m.

KEY ROLE IN BUDGET

Associates for McCarter. McCarter Theatre could not have balanded its budget without the financial support of the McCarter Associates, Robert Paulus, president of the theatre's trustees, told the annual meeting of the Associates June 10.

Associates' officers reported that the organization's income of $65,000 was $5,000 more than expected when the budget was drawn up in September. A "substantial" rise in membership and increased contributions from many members accounted for the increase, the officers said.

At the annual meeting, attended by about 150 members, Mrs. Elwood W. Phares was chosen to succeed Mrs. Stuart Duncan as chairman of the McCarter Associates. Serving with her will be William Stackpole and Mrs. George Vaughn, vice-chairman; Mrs. Joseph Blaicker, treasurer and Mrs. Edward E. Matthews, secretary.

"SOUTH PACIFIC"

Open Air. You remember Nellie Forbush, the Navy nurse who said "I'm Gonna Wash That Man Right Out of My Hair." That man was the wealthy French planter, Emile deBecque, who met her "Some Enchanted Evening" and the Rodgers-Hammerstein musical "South Pacific" went on from there.

"South Pacific," in the Princeton Opera Association production, will play the Open Air Theatre, Washington Crossing State Park, this weekend and next.

Opening night is this Thursday, with presentations also scheduled for Friday and Saturday. "South Pacific" will play again Thursday through Saturday July 26-28. Rain dates are Sundays, July 22 and 29. Curtain time is 8:30 all nights.

The book, based on James Michener's "Tales of the South Pacific," also includes Luther Billis, the Seabee who tries to make an island into his own business empire, and Bloody Mary, the Tonkinese who earns her living selling grass skirts and shrunken heads to G.I.'s.

Songs? "There is Nothing Like a Dame," "Bali Ha'i," "Younger Than Springtime," and the two mentioned above.

Jack Lanning and Mary Kemp will portray deBecque and Nellie; Harry Clark will be Luther Billis and Dorothy Edwards, Bloody Mary; Liat will be Missy Leigh Okun and Lt. Joe Cable will be played by Tom Brown. Michael Walker and Dale Ducko will be the island's military leaders. Igor Chichagov is musical director and conductor and Daniel F. Berkowitz, the director.

SQUARE DANCE!

It will be a town square dance, Fred Fields as caller. Dancing will be on the blacktop parking lot. You travel Route 206, either north or south, and when you reach the traffic light and the Mountain Avenue jug-handle

TENOR TO SING

At Boychoir School Recital. Young Canadian opera tenor Mark DuBois will be featured Wednesday, July 25 at 8 in a special recital at Albemarle, the summer program of the Boychoir School of Princeton.

Mr. DuBois has attained the position of leading tenor with the influential Canadian Opera Company at the early age of 26. Already in his brief operatic career he has played a number of major roles, including Prince Charming in Rossini's "Cinderella," the tenor lead in Britten's "Rape of Lucretia," Pelleas in Debussy's "Pelleas and Mellisande," Orpheus in Offenbach's "Orpheus in the Underworld," and the title role in Britten's "Albert Herring." In addition to many other operatic roles, he has devoloped an enormous oratorio repertoire.

Most recently, Mr. DuBois was chosen as the representative Canadian tenor for the Opera America auditions in September in New York. Assisting Mr. DuBois at this recital will be Matteo Giammario, instrumental director of Albemarle, violin; Katrina Jones, cello; Jody Krosnick, flute; and Clarence Chang and Arlene Jones, piano. Included on the program will be works of Mozart, Puccini, Schubert, Schumann and Prokofiev.

Mr. Dubois is music director of Albemarle, the new summer program for boys and girls at the home of the Columbus Boychoir. Included in the program, in addition to camp activities and swimming, are twice-daily choral rehearsals and instrumental practice and performance.

The recital will be held in the Main Hall of the Boychoir School on Lambert Drive off Rosedale Road. No admission will be charged, and a champagne punch and cheese will be served.

RECITAL PLANNED

By Duo Pianists. The piano duet team of William and Louise Cheadle will give a recital in the Playhouse at Westminster Choir College Thursday July 26, at 8. The public is invited and may attend for free.

The program will feature two highlights: Saint Saens' "Carnival of the Animals" with the Ogden Nash poems narrated by Erik Routley and "Picture Postcards, Set II," by William Cheadle -- a premiere performance.

Dr. Routley is an English-born theologian and musician, a world authority on hymnology, an author of some 30 books, and a humorous speaker. The "Picture Postcards, Set II" of pianist-composer Cheadle are entitled: "Statue of Liberty," "Dancing Lesson," "Western Scene," "Clowns," "Russian Santa," "Forget-me-nots," and "Old Fiddler."

Mr. Cheadle presented the first set of Picture Postcards last year. They were written at his wife's suggestion and are miniature pieces for piano duet, inspired by his collection of over 20,000 postcards.

The remainder of the recital will include: "Arrival of the Queen of Sheba" by Handel; "Barcarole Suite No. 1," Rachmaninoff; "Dances for Duo," Arthur Benjamin-Cheadle; "Pavane," Morton Gould; "Valse Musette," Henry F. Gilbert; "Farucca," Poulenc; "Sonata in D major," Manuel Infante; "The Banjo," Mozart; "Gottschalk, arranged by Cheadle.

FOLK CONCERT SET

At Douglass College. A free folk concert will be presented Saturday at 8 at Douglass College as part of Rutgers University's summer arts festival.

Jim Albertson of Mauricetown, a folk musician and storyteller, will be master of ceremonies for the concert, which will take place on the lawn between the Gibbons dormitories and the Continuing Education Center. Musicians performing will be the Pineconers, an "old-timey" string band from the Waretown - Forked River area; Bob Killian of Little Silver; Elaine Silver of Montville; and Merce Ridgway Jr. of Waretown, with the Pinchawkers and specinl guest artist Emil Brown of Hog Wallow.

Concert-goers are invited to bring blankets and chairs. In case of rain the program will be moved to Rehearsal Hall near the Levin Theater at Douglass. The folk concert is part of the "Arts for a Summer Evening" celebration presented by the State University's Mason Gross School of the Arts and the Summer Session.

The Pineconers play country music and fiddle tunes as well as songs written by natives of the Pine Barrens. The group is active in the Pinelands Cultural Society, an organization

On August 2, the jazz quintet Leaps and Bounds will perform, again at Community Park North, drawing on the music of Miles Davis, John Coltrane and other American musicians. On August 9, Mainstream will present their explorations into the new sounds of jazz rock fusion.

For the final concert on August 30, Summer Sounds will leave Community Park for a rock concert on Pardee Field.

Admission is free. There are picnic areas at Community Park North for pre-concert suppers.

"PICNIC" IS OFFERING Of Street Theatre. The Princeton Street Theatre's production of William Inge's "Picnic" will be presented in serveral locations in the Princeton area from this Wesnesday through Saturday, July 28. The mobile stage will travel to Redding Terrace (on the corner of Mount Lucas Road and Ewing Street) for the debut performance on Wednesday at 7:30.

STAGE HANDS: Lending a hand with Street Theatre's stage that projects from its travelling trailer are (from left) Melanie Gross, Alex Kappes, Ken Junkins and Neil McGrath. Partially hidden are Amy Iranas and Laurie Walden. Street Theatre will open with "Picnic" this Wednesday at Redding Terrace.

On Thursday at Littlebrook School, and on all other evenings, the curtain will go up at 8. Friday the scene will be the Maurice Hawk School in West Windsor, with Riverside School the site of Saturday's production. Sunday's performance will be held on the Palmer Square Green in front of the post office.

After a three-day break, Holly House in the Princeton Community Village will host the mobile stage on Thursday, July 26. The trailer will be back at Palmer Square on Friday evening and the final performance will be in front of Princeton High School on Sautrday, July 28.

"Picnic" is a summer romance about Hal Carter, a young vagabond (played by Dave Hummel), who wanders into a small Kansas town, falls in love with the town beauty Madge (portrayed by Karen Schleyer), and changes the lives of several other people. Madge's younger sister, Millie (played by Rochelle Jacobs), gains confidence in herself and blossoms during the 48 hours covered by the play. Flo Owens, the girl's mother (played by Celia Munro) sees herself reflected in her daughter's dreams.

Rosemary Sidney, a schoolteacher (portrayed by Anne Hughes) is made to realize that her relationship with Howard Bevins (played by John Wible) has not grown in several years. Madge's boyfriend, Alan Seymour (played by Greg Lieberman), realizes that Madge needs more than just to be admired and looked at. Ellen Pearl plays Mrs. Potts, the Owen's sweet neighbor. The paperboy is played by Ken Menken. Rosemary's friends are played by Marian Sanders and Amy Binkoff.

The entire production is under the direction of Debbie Bellow, assisted by Carol Ann Lewandowski as stage manager and Karen Schleyer and Lora Welchy as prop coordinators. Set and lighting design is by Ken Junkins assisted by Alex Kappes. Costumes are coordinated by Rochelle Jacobs and Ioana Belcea.

FAIR LADY COMING To Bucks County. One of the most celebrated musicals to arrive at the Bucks County Playhouse, Lerner and Loewe's "My Fair Lady" will open Tuesday, July 24 and run through August 5.

Truly a Broadway classic, "My Fair Lady" is based on George Bernard Shaw's play "Pygmalion." Playing the leading roles of Professor Henry Higgins and Eliza Doolittle, the girl he transforms from a cockney guttersnipe into a charming well-spoken English lady, are Jack Maloney and Barbara Solarz.

Jack Maloney will be remembered by Playhouse audiences who saw him earlier this season as the ebullient con-man Professor Harold Hill in "The Music Man." Barbara, who began her theatrical career as an apprentice at the Playhouse during the 1978 season, is playing her first major role in this production. Professor Higgins' friend Pickering will be played by Newton Gilchrist, who played Charlemagne in "Pippin" earlier this season.

For information regarding season subscriptions and theatre party group discounts telephone (215) 862-2041. The Playhouse is on its summer schedule with performances Tuesday through Friday evenings at 8:30, Wednesday matinees at 2, Saturday two shows at 5 and 9 p.m., and Sunday performances at 2 and 7:30.

ART
In Princeton

MUSEUM TOUR SET

By Art Association. The Princeton Art Association is offering a bus trip to New York's museums and galleries Thursday, July 26.

A chartered air-conditioned bus will leave the Princeton Shopping Center at 9. In New York it will make three stops along Fifth Avenue's Museum Mile at 91st, 82nd and 70th streets, and a fourth stop at the Museum of Modern Art, 53rd Street and Fifth Avenue. Passengers will be provided with a listing of exhibits at the various museums and galleries and will be on their own to pursue their special interests. On the return trip, the bus will make uptown and downtown pickups and is scheduled to return to Princeton at 5.

The fee for the trip is $8 for members, and $10 for non-members. To reserve space, call the PAA at 921-9173.

The Cooper-Hewitt Museum, at Fifth Avenue and 91st Street, is exhibiting architectural drawings by Finnish designer Alvar Aalto, along with furniture, glassware, fabrics and other items designed by him. The museum is also displaying a group of more than 200 items in a loan show titled "Fantastic Illustration and Design in Britain, 1850-1930." The show is made up of illustrations by Rossetti, Beardsley, Rackham and Beatrix Potter, and decorative objects adapted by Kate Greenaway from her book illustrations.

Two blocks downtown, at 89th Street, a group of 80 18th century French drawings, on loan from the Musee Carnavalet, is being shown at the National Academy of Design. A few steps further south, the Guggenheim is showing a selection of works by artists working in France during the first half of this century; paintings by Matisse, Gris and Picabia form part of the exhibit. The Guggenheim also has on view a retrospective show of the work of Mexican painter Rufino Tamayo.

At 82nd and Fifth, the big banner flying from the facade of the Metropolitan Museum reminds us that "Treasures from the Kremlin" is the current glamor attraction: the 100 or so items comprising this show will remain in town until September 2. The Met's Lehman Collection offers 50 European landscape drawings, and their print collection is displaying work by Callot, Tiepolo, Redon and others.

Should too long an immersion in European art inspire an attack of cultural inferiority, the museum-goer can recover his amor patriae at the Whitney Museum of American Art, at Madison Avenue and 75th Street. A retrospective of sculptures by George Segal and a group of early paintings by Reginald Marsh are the attractions here at the Whitney Museum of American Art at Madison Avenue and 75th Street. The Museum of American Folk Art, 44 West 53rd, has on display a loan show of Hawaiian quilts, and there is also the American Craft Museum, 49 West 53rd.

FOLK ART ON VIEW

From Poland. Polish folk art will be on display at the Rutgers University Art Gallery through August 17.

The 20 artifacts in the exhibit date from the 1870s to the present. Included are pieces of woodcarving crafted by men and boys in the mountainous region of Zakopane and lace, embroidery and woven fabrics made by women in the Bialystok region.

All of the art objects are privately owned by New Jersey residents. Many, such as an amber necklace made in Gdansk on the Baltic Sea, are family heirlooms, while some were purchased on recent trips to Poland.

Wycinaki, one of the oldest Polish folk arts, consisting of multicolored paper cut-out designs, is represented in the display. There are also examples of traditional Polish costumes from Lowicz and Krakow.

Along with the exhibit of Polish folk art, the State University gallery will be displaying selections from the Rutgers fine arts collection, including a group of narrative and series prints, some dating to the 16th century, and abstract works by contemporary American artists.

The creation of a lithographic poster will be illustrated by trial proofs, color separations, plates and sketches tracing the development of a poster made last year by Pat Adams for the contemporary artists series at the gallery.

The Rutgers gallery is in Voorhees Hall on Hamilton Street near George Street. Admission is free. Summer hours are 10 to 4 Monday through Friday, and 1 to 4 Sunday.

POST 76 FALTERING

Playoff Berth in Jeopardy. Just when it needed some wins to secure a playoff berth in the Mercer County American Legion league race, Princeton Post 76 picked last week to have its bats go silent and lost three times.

The triple setback left Post 76 with a 10-9-1 record and leaves it squarely in a dogfight with three other teams for a fourth-place finish needed to enter the playoffs. Princeton has seven games left before the playoffs begin August 2.

Sunday, in its most recent outing, Princeton was held to three hits by Ewing Post 314 hurler Bob Weyand, who struck out four and walked one en route to a 2-0 shutout. The win kept Ewing tied for the league lead with Hamilton Post 31. Both leaders are 15-5.

John Luse was firing just as hard for Princeton. He struck out 12 and scattered seven hits in being charged with his fifth loss against three wins. The only Post 76 hitters to get a hit off Weyland (5-1) were Dave Reed, Al Kandell and Jeff Lechowitz.

Ewing scored its first run in the third. After third baseman Dave Pope singled, Princeton shortstop Brent Robinson and second baseman Mark Adams were both charged with errors on successive plays — both on potential double play balls. With the bases full, Mitch Friedman singled home Pope. Luse then retired the next two on strikeouts.

In the sixth, Ewing's Mike LaRossa doubled to right center, scoring Jeff DePiano who had singled. Princeton did not get a runner to third base. Coupled with a 12-0 shutout in its previous game, it was the 15th consecutive inning in which Post 76 failed to score a run.

Laugher for Hamilton. Earlier in the week, Brian Binns of Hamilton struck out nine and allowed only four hits as the league co-leader blanked Princetoo, 12-0.

Brian Gallagher, Hamilton's slugging centerfielder, led the assault against Princeton hurler Scott Weber, batting 3-for-4 and driving in four runs. He is hitting the ball at a .471 clip.

The game was scoreless after two, but Hamilton then scored in every inning after that, sending four home in the fourth and five more in the fifth. The loss was Weber's first after four wins. Dave Reed (2 hits), Lechowitz and Bob Easton were the only batters to solve Binns.

Two days earlier, Princeton was the victim of another fine pitching performance, this one by Hun School flamethrower Anthony Bevilacqua, who set Post 76 down on a four-hitter and a 3-2 win for Trenton Post 93. He fanned five.

Two walks, an error, a ground out and Robinson's single had staked Princeton to a 2-0 lead in the second. Trenton got one back in the third on a triple and sacrifice fly and tied it an inning later on Jeff Migliaccio's single with the bases full.

It remained that way with Luse battling Bevilacqua on the mound until the eighth. Luse got in trouble when his control left him and he walked the first two batters. A sacrifice fly and a ground out sent the winning run across and Trenton had its twelfth victory in 18 starts.

Playoff System. In previous years the Legion had a northern and southern division. This year there are ten teams in one division. The regular season champion receives an automatic bid to the annual state Legion Tournament.

It appears that either Ewing or Hamilton will emerge as champions with the loser assured second place.

Trenton Post 93 is in third place with a 13-7 record and 26 points. Princeton is bunched with four other teams fighting for fourth place. Broad Street Park Post 313 and Bordentown Post 26 are tied at 22 points. Princeton has 21 while Lawrence Malls Post 414 had 20.

The double elimination round robin playoff among the second, third and fourth place finishers will begin with the fourth-place team meeting the third-place team. The next night — August 3 — the second-place team, which draws an opening round bye, will play the loser of the first game. Play will continue among the three in a best-of-three series until there is a winner.

The state American Legion tournament in this area will begin August 11 at Eggerts Crossing Field in Lawrence Township.

Has any big league pitcher ever been taken out of a game WHILE HE WAS PITCHING A NO-HITTER? ... It happened to Clay Kirby in 1970 and Don Wilson in 1974 ... Both were taken out for pinch-hitters in the 8th inning of games in which they were pitching no-hitters -- and both times it was done by the same manager -- Preston Gomez ... And in both bases, the relief pitchers gave up hits and lost not only the no-hitter but the game as well.

for their USTA geographical section. Sections represented will include Northern and Southern California, Florida Texas, Southern, Western (midwestern states), New England, Eastern, Middle Atlantic, and Middle States.

The caliber of play in this event is reflected in the fact that last year it pitted Tracy Austin against Pam Shriver at the number one spot when Southern California took on Middle Atlantic. Steven Kraft, Coordinator of Junior Affairs for the United States Tennis Association, points to the Western Tennis Association team as a strong candidate for victory.

Match play will begin on the morning of July 30 at the Princeton University varsity tennis courts.

GREEN UNDEFEATED

Three Tied for Second. Green remained undefeated (4-0) and three teams -- Navy, Orange and Gold -- were all tied at 2-2 for second place, after action last week in the Princeton Summer Lacrosse League. Red and Blue are tied for third place with 1-3 records.

Green used a balanced attack to defeat Blue, 9-4, at the Princeton High School field. John Morris had two goals for the victors while Morgan Mohrman had one and two assists and Doug Firstenberg had one goal and one assist. Scoring once for Green were Amos Levy, Alex Wert, David Rosenbloom, Ted Miller and Scott Zahn.

Blue, which did all its scoring in the first and fourth periods, received three goals from Mike Shannon. Lawrence Shannon and Sam Reeves added single goals.

Tom Fowler, David Barnes, and Bryce Chase each scored two goals and an assist and Mace Mohrman had two goals and two assists to lead Navy to a 10-4 victory over Gold. Scott Waterman and Bob Cottrell claimed the other Navy goals.

Harry Burton in the first period and Hal Kokes, Peter Bulk and Matt Adriance, all in the fourth, accounted for the Gold scoring.

Earler, Fowler, Barnes, Mohrman and Waterman each scored twice as Navy stopped Blue, 9-2. Chase added a single tally. Jeb Bell and Lawrence Shannon scored for Blue in the first period which ended tied at 2.

Behind 3-2 at the half, Orange fought back to edge Red, 5-4. Ken Alterman, who scored twice for Orange, caged the winning goal. Tim Murdoch, Pat Sheehan and Peter Scott scored one goal each for the victors.

Red received single goals from Bob Campbell, Mark Zawadsky, Grant Cooper and Greg Hirsch, the latter adding an assist. Red was blanked in the first and third periods by the Orange defense.

WINNERS NAMED

In Edie Raser Tournament. Almost 100 Princeton area junior tennis players participated in the 1979 Edie Raser Memorial five-day tennis tournament sponsored last week by the Princeton Recreation Department and the Princeton Community Tennis Program.

Winner in the girls 12 and under event was top-seeded Gabriele Neues, who defeated the second seed, Melinda Bowen, 6-2, 6-1. In the girls 14 and under division, the seedings held up again as Debbie Safko, the number one seed, defeated second-seeded Debbie Stier, 6-2, 6-1. Second-seeded Sharon McCurdy upset top-seeded Diane Aronovic, 6-2, 6-4, in the girls 16 and under event. Miss Aronovic had defeated third-seeded Mary Reilly and Gillian LeFaivre to reach the finals.

In the boys' events, Safi Bahcall, the third seed, emerged as champion when he defeated Michael Petrone, 6-4, 6-0. Petrone had upset second-seeded Mark McCurdy, Jim Hall and Lyle Menendez to gain the finals while Bahcall had defeated Bruce Ellis, Shannon Grover and Davie Stier.

no-hitter. Homeruns by Trotman and Jack Zahner, doubles by Michael Blaxill and Mark Nathan and a pair of singles by Dino D'Angelo and Ben Danson provided all the power Roma needed.

In their first win, Roma scored 15 runs in the first inning and went on to rout cellar-dwelling Italian-American. Roma pitchers Andrew Bing and Blaxill each connected for homers, while Joe Connells rapped a double. In all, Roma raked I-A pitching for 18 hits.

Engine No. 1 enjoyed two lopsided wins of its own. It overwhelmed Elks, 25-1, in an attack that featured homeruns by Jeff Enslin, Jim Opperman and Fred Young, and then routed Italian-American, 19-7. Young belted two homers and Bill Scott one for the victors. Enslin had a triple.

The Eagles (7-4) split. They trounced Century 21, 24-10, as pitchers Michael Petrone and Tommy Worthington each slugged four-baggers. Earlier they had to forfeit to Engine No. 3 because of a shortage of players. (After drafting six-year old Scott Petrone, the Eagles went on to win an unofficial game.)

LEADERS ALL WIN

In Girls Softball. League-leader, Sweet Jersey Corn defeated Ivy Inn, 12-1, last week to maintain its slim lead over Conte's Bar, which kept pace with an easy, 17-8, win over Community Liquors. Claire Johnston with a double and two triples led the Conte assault, as every player scored and hit safely.

The Zephyrs' Linus McHugh knocked in four runs with three hits, one a homer, and helped send winless PITS to its 13th straight defeat, 17-4. The Pacers, struggling to make a playoff spot, put a damper on Andy's Angels' hopes, defeating them, 9-3, with a five-run sixth inning.

In last week's games, Community Liquors held a surprising 4-3 lead going into the last inning over Jersey Corn, but two errors and Dee Pearce's single brought a sigh of relief and a 5-4 win for Corn.

Conte's, too, found the going rough. After scoring five runs in the top of the first which featured a Claire Johnston home run with one on, PITS came back with three runs — doubles by Cindy Henderson and Cheryl Spratt the big blows. Although PITS played one of its best defensive games of the season, Conte's prevailed, 9-3.

Koffee Kup won its seventh straight, crushing the Pacers 17-1, and avenging the Pacers' early upset win. Vernell Carr with two home runs and a triple knocked in seven runs for the Kup. In the battle for fourth place, the Zephyrs dominated Ivy Inn, winning 8-1, as Angie Terseky (three hits) and Bobbie Rawcliff (three-run homer) led the way. Tina Carnevale pitched the impressive win.

SUMMER FUN AT HUN! Boys and girls at The Hun School Day Camp, circle around camp counselor, Gay Betterson, to have their faces painted. Left to right - Doug Mosia, Ted Kirschner, Tracey De Vaux, Rebecca Savidga, Scott McGoldrick, and Dan Knoepfmacher. Campers have been enjoying many other activities such as: arts & crafts, swimming, tennis, photography, fishing, cook-outs and occasional camp-outs.

announced that a volunteer committee, composed of eight Princeton residents, will conduct the campaign. They are Richard W. Baker, Dean W. Chace, George W. Conover, John F. Hoff, R.L. Lenhart, Ralph S. Mason, James Stewart III and William L. Wilson.

The major objective of the campaign will be to provide approximately $23,000 toward the purchase of a new Lifemobile ambulance and another $9,000 to equip the vehicle. Age and hard usage force the replacement of the Squad's present number one ambulance, which will be retained as an emergency back-up vehicle. Anticipating this need in 1980, the Squad has built up a replacement fund of $16,000 from current receipts over the past five years, but inflation has made that reserve inadequate to cover the current purchase cost.

Another $8,500 is needed to replace the chassis on the present Lifemobile so that it can be kept operating for emergency needs. Necessary repairs and modifications to the Squad's heavy rescue truck will cost another $1,500. If the goal is met and goes over the top sufficiently, from one to three walkie-talkie units will be purchased for a maximum of $4,500, and $2,500 will be spent for additional equipment and training of the underwater rescue (SCUBA diving) team. A $5,000 contingency fund also is budgeted to cover unanticipated cost increases or emergencies.

"Personal appeals, in person or by letter, will be made by the members of our Campaign Committee to those in the community who can rightfully be expected to be best able and willing to help us in this serious emergency," Captain Obert said. "However, we invite and will be exceptionally grateful for any unsolicited gifts that we may receive. Anyone or any organization in the community that wishes to express appreciation for past services of the Squad or recognition of our place in the life of the community are invited to send their gifts to the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad, P.O. Box 529. These will be immediately acknowledged with deepest thanks."

Ray Male

This is where Initiative is now.

Where it began, was with "The Boundless Resource," a book by former Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz ("the rich man's Ray Male," Ray calls him) with whom Ray worked as New Jersey's labor commissioner and whom he came to know intimately. The book was a proposal for an education-work policy.

Ray was seized by the idea, especially by a James Reston column which said, in effect, "... if only we'd DO something!" Ray added "leisure" to the work-education concept because he was deeply disturbed by what Wirtz himself had called the "nothingness" of retirement and the enforced idleness of unemployed youth.

Core of Volunteers. It was an assistant secretary of labor in Republican President Gerald Ford's administration who gave Democrat Ray Male and his core of eight volunteers, the Federal financing they needed. Today, four jobs are financed through the grant: Mr. Beaver, who is associated with IBM and represents industry; Mr. Male, who represents education, through the Thomas A. Edison College; Marilyn Lockhart for labor and Chris Moore as administrative assistant. The four categories were set up at the request of Federal officials, although Initiative itself is not a structured organization.

"Work is a lifelong activity -- it starts when a three-year-old helps Grandpa," Ray says, his ideas and words rushing, as always, in express lanes, "I do not limit education to mere schooling -- and I try to smile when I say that! -- but to what you learn at home, on the job, on the streets, in the library, all your life."

"Leisure is the 'down time' in your life. If you're unemployed, use your three-month layoff as an upbeat time to learn things that will make your life more enjoyable. If you're in jail for some malfunction related to society -- well, there are several hundred students in New Jersey jails, working with Edison College. And when I was mayor I used to think it was so exciting -- what people will do for Princeton as volunteers!"

"The way it is now, we look at people or buildings and we condemn them. But think of the people who hate their jobs or do them badly, and have never had a chance to do something they've always wanted to do."

"There's something in there, crying to come out. The creativity is there. What I want to do, is get more and more people excited, interested. Wirtz said it: our boundless resource is -- people."

TWO FILMS PLANNED

By Library. The Princeton Public Library will present two films, "Dream of the Wild Horses" and "Curtain Up" Tuesday, July 24, at 8.

The first is a mood-evoking short on the movement of horses running wild and free. "Curtain Up" is a British comedy starring Robert Morley and Margaret Rutherford. It is about "little theatre" dramatics and the temperaments of amateur actors.

The free program will last 95 minutes, and everyone is invited.

SQUAD SEEKS FUNDS

To Up-date Equipment. For the first time in its history, the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad is launching a one-time special gifts campaign to obtain funds that are urgently needed to maintain the quality and reliability of the Squad's motorized and communications equipment. The minimum goal is $50,000.

The appeals will be directed to business organizations, institutions, foundations and individuals in the community who depend most heavily on the Squad's services or who have demonstrated their support for the organization through the generosity of their past contributions. The campaign will not be a broad-based one that would compete with the Squad's annual appeal to the entire community for operating funds. This is acheduled for the fall, as usual.

Captain J. Edwin Obert, Jr., the Squad's captain, has

At last, the end of drooperies.

Drooperies are draperies that droop, poop, wrinkle and sag. Gardisette, the #1 Hang-up all over Europe, announces the end of drooperies.

All Gardisette draperies are seamless (endlessly wide), easy to take care of, washable. And all come with the exclusive Combiflex lead lace hem for beautiful even folds. Once you have Gardisette draperies, you'll never have drooperies again.
